I have learned to manage my anger. My mom is more patient
My mother is much calmer and listens more, it is easier for us to understand each other
There have been a lot of changes with my daughters because we trust each other more. We communicate with more patience when confronting difficult situations. The same with other people. I feel happy and grateful with all the personnel at Enlace because they have helped me understand what domestic violence is, how to move forward with my daughters and, most of all, to value myself as a person
The changes, their safety, trust, communication, their participation at home. We have a better relationship and understanding. [I wish there were] morning groups, so it could be more flexible, and we could attend
I would like a space for youth ages 18 and older sometimes they are the most affected and there is not a space for them.
I could see the difference in how we communicate with my children. Before, there was no communication. Now we can talk instead of screaming and instead of leaving and shut ourselves off in our rooms.
My mother is much calmer, she listens more, and it easy for us to understand each other.
